Extensive Improvement Work Now in Progress Makes City Veritable Beehive of Construction Activity

New Pavings, Business Blocks and Dwellings Included in Program

GANGS of men tearing up old car line! Steam shovels cutting roadbed! Ditching machines digging deep sewers! More steam shovels excavating for new buildings! Scores of carpenters in various sections of the city erecting new dwellings!

These are the things that one would see in a composite picture of Marion's building and reconstruction program. If the picture were to be made into a movie one would see new houses springing up where vacant lots were before. Old car lines that have carried the city's transportation burden for more than a third of a century would be seen wrecked and carted away as junk.

If a serial picture was made it would in future scenes show new streets being laid through the business section and several residential parts of the city. It would show new street lights being erected along Main and Center sts. New business blocks would be shown springing into existence to replace old and dilapidated structures.

An Important Phase

But no composite picture of Marion would be complete without another phase of the city's activities. Perhaps it could be used as a prologue to the picture proper. It would show Marion giving.

The prologue would open by picturing Marion with a white feather in her hat. Gradually the feather would turn red as Marionites opened their hearts and pocketbooks to pour $61 000 into a charity fund. The city would be shown taking care of its needs.

Behind the scenes this is what is going on.

The C. D. & M. has completed excavation for its new car line

Composite Picture Presents Almost Unprecedented Evidence of Progress

JURY ASSAILED IN CONVICTING CHILD OF SIX

Judges Sociologists and Criminologists Shocked at Kentucky Court

BOY GIVEN 15-YEAR TERM

Verdict and Sentence Result of His Killing of Companion

NEW YORK May 24—Astonishment was expressed here today by judges sociologists and criminologists that anywhere in the United States a jury could be obtained which would convict a 6 year old boy of manslaughter as has just happened in Kentucky.

The boy Carl Mahan was found guilty of manslaughter at Paintsville Ky by a jury of 12 farmers and coal miners and sent to the Kentucky State Reform school until he is 21 years old. He killed Cecil Van Hoose his 5 year old playmate last Saturday.

Carl and Cecil were seeking scrap iron to sell and Carl found a piece of iron. Cecil according to Carl's story tried to take it away from him and succeeded. Then the younger boy it is charged went to his home got his father's shotgun and went back and shot his playmate.

Protest Action

Could this boy of the fundamentalist say have realized the enormity of the offense? Does society demand of such a child the same penalty and criminal branding that would be given to a fully developed adult?

No! is the emphatic answer from New York where officials generally expressed astonishment at the verdict.

It is inconceivable that a 6 year old child could be treated in this manner anywhere in our great civilized nation declared George H. Worthington a member of the police department's minds appointed crime commission. "Under the law a boy is an infant until seven years of age. The verdict should shock the conscience of most people. A child under 16 should be dealt with in a juvenile court.

Needs Supervision

Senator Benjamin Antin member of the New York state crime commission said the boy should never have been handled as a common criminal or as an adult responsible for his acts.

The Rev. Christian I. Wiesner prominent in social welfare work expressed surprise at the verdict adding:

"If I believe in God I must believe

WORKERS NEED ONLY $4,920 TO GO OVER TOP

Today's Report Carries Total Subscriptions Up to $59,081

IN SECOND DAY

Approach of Victory Hailed with Wild Enthusiasm at Headquarters

BY W. T. BUCHANAN
Marion Star Staff Writer

One more barrage!

That will put Marion's first Community Fund drive over the top.

Today the feather in Marion's hat turned red to the $59 081 54 mark. The total reported today was $24 216 37, slightly less than $10 000 below yesterday's mark.

The goal is less than $4 920 away.

Marion's Community Fund army made its second report at Fund headquarters in the Marion club at noon today. Pandemonium reigned when it was announced at the end of the report that slightly more than $4 900 remained to be raised.

Workers were wildly enthusiastic. They were warned by officials however that the success of the victory dinner scheduled for next Tuesday night might depend entirely upon results of the next three days. Saturday Monday and Tuesday remain in which to reach the goal.

Tell Score Victories

The big gifts committee captured the biggest fortress of the day. All divisions however were well up to yesterday's marks. There wasn't a tail spin or nose dive in the entire outfit of 354 workers.

The big gifts committee reported subscriptions since yesterday of $8 810. Yesterday's report was $10 004.

The industrial division, however, remained in the lead in the total number of dollars captured. The $7,044 77 reported today boosted the total for this division to $22,743 68.

The committee on corporations armed by outside interests reported subscriptions of $620 in addition to the $700 reported yesterday. Schools reported $537 with eight buildings 100 per cent.

The men's territorial division made another huge hole in the opponent's territory today. The report was $6,700 00. This boosted the division total to $13 748 46.

The women's territorial division, which has been doing effective sniping in the residential section of the city made a report today of $947 00. With yesterday's report the total now is $2 077.

Medal Winners

Captain A. W. Kette and his team in Major Homer R. Waddell's division took the D. S. C. medal today with subscriptions since yesterday of $7081. Mrs. Mame H. Frank captain, and her team in Mrs. Howard Stoll's division got another medal for turning in a casualty list of $231 50.

Henry Clark Fund educational director, made his last talk before the Fund army at noon today. This morning Clark made his second address before students of Central Junior high school. This talk was made at the request of the students.

Sixty six more firms were captured 100 per cent. This brings the total unconditional surrenders to 117.

Ninety per cent of the departments of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. were reported to be 100 per cent. With today's report the total subscription from the Shovel plant was $15 006 00. This does not include the subscriptions of the company and officials.

Several other manufacturing plants were in 100 per cent.

Workers Enthused by Opening Report

Marion's army of Community Fund workers started on its second offensive this morning.

Heartened by overwhelming victories yesterday the soldiers renewed their efforts to reach the $24,000 objective by Tuesday afternoon, when the campaign will close.

Less than $5,000 remained to be captured when the army returned to the field yesterday after its first report meeting at noon. The noon report showed that subscriptions totaling $24,087.37 had been captured up to this time.

The army was to resume its other "barrage" at noon today.

THIRD DEATH IN MOCK WAR

Staff Sergeant Dies of Injuries from Back-Firing Propeller

COLUMBUS May 24—The U. S. army mock war claimed its third casualty today.

Staff Sergt. Frank Deeman 28 mechanic members of the 91th pursuit squadron Selfridge Field Mich. stationed at Sexton Field here during the 11 day mimic war died in Fort Hayes army barracks hospital here this morning from injuries sustained late yesterday when a plane back fired sending the propeller crashing into the man's chest.

Sergt. Gerald Miller of the same squadron suffered a broken wrist in the accident while attempting to pull his buddy away from the spinning prop.

Deeman had been with the 91th pursuit squadron of Selfridge Field for nearly four years.

Prior to that he had served in the British army in India as an engineer.

The aviator suffered the fatal injuries when he stepped up to the plan of Lieutenant Hines after his first efforts to crank it had failed.

As he grabbed hold of the prop the engine relighted and back fired. The propeller struck the man over the heart.

TWO INJURED AS SEWER WALL SLIPS

West Center St. Workmen in Hospital Following Accident

Two men were injured when part of the sidewall along West Center st. sewer excavations collapsed shortly before 2 o'clock. The extent of their injuries is not known.

Joe Goff, an employe of contractors Uncapher & Gillespie, was standing near the edge of the 14 foot trench, assisting in lowering a large tile, by block and tackle, to men in the trench below. As part of the edge gave way he fell into the trench. He received a cut on his left cheekbone and also had a badly bruised arm in addition to internal injuries.

Joe Furnish, another workman, was struck by the falling tripod on which the block and tackle was fastened. The gray struck him across the back, near the kidney. He was nearly dislodged by the force of the blow, but was not outwardly cut or bruised and his internal injuries are not yet known.

Both men were taken to the Marion City Hospital by the Hess-Mathey & Ane ambulance.

'Queen's Husband,' Annual Senior Class Play, Ranks High in School Dramatics

Capacity Audience Sees Cast in Brilliant Presentation of Romantic Satire Dealing with European Royalty, Final Performance Set for Tonight

The Queen's Husband given its first presentation in this city at the Grand theater last night by the senior class of Harding High school marked another step in high school dramatic history.

The capacity audience enjoyed every minute of the romantic satire written in three acts by Robert Emmet Sherwood. There was seen wit subtle humor and a remarkable showing of dramatic ability in the presentation set off by beautiful costuming a dignified setting and the finely drawn direction of Miss Lucile Foreman who has made each of her succeeding plays better than its predecessors.

The curtain rises on a scene of dignified elegance the king's private office in the palace of a kingdom somewhere between Denmark and Scotland. The palace is in a quiet state of furore occasioned by the approaching departure of Queen Martha for the United States to negotiate a loan for her kingdom.

In the midst of the excitement of departure General Northrup and Lord Birlen arrive with the important announcement that a formal engagement of state has been arranged between the Princess Anne the queen's daughter and Prince William of Greek. The queen is overjoyed the princess outraged and the king when he hears of it not at all pleased. Princess Anne is in love with Frederick Granton a handsome secretary to the king.

Prefers Peaceful Pastime

Checker playing, gazing at penguins and riding his bicycle are far more interesting features of ruling a kingdom according to the king's outlook on life than trying to compete with his wife in running the affairs of the country.

The queen leaves for the United States, much to the relief of the entire palace.

Two months later when the second act opens the people of the kingdom have risen in arms and are rebelling against the rule of General Northrup a man who has his ambitions set on the presidency of the country. Apparently powerless' the king lets

AUTO DRIVER CONVICTED IN JURY HEARING

Speedy Verdict Returned Against Hager, Indicted on Intoxication Charge

FIRST CASE ON RECORD

Jury Reports After 10-Minute Deliberation, Bond Set at $3,000

H. A. Hager local automobile salesman was found guilty of driving an automobile while intoxicated by a jury in common pleas court yesterday afternoon.

The jury deliberated 10 minutes and reported shortly before 1 30 o'clock.

This is said to be the first case of its kind in the county court. The municipal court in which Hager was arraigned had no jurisdiction to assess a penalty when he entered a plea of not guilty. The city court bound Hager over to the county grand jury which returned an indictment against him in its last session.

Hager was arrested several weeks ago after his machine had crashed into an electric light pole on North Main st. He was unable to say where he obtained the liquor.

Hager testified on the witness stand that the machine was being driven at the time of the accident by a Joe Cox who left the machine after the accident. Cox has not been seen by Baker since the crash according to the testimony. Hager admitted being intoxicated.

One of the state's witnesses who saw the car immediately after the crash testified that no one left the machine. Hager was found slumped over the steering wheel after the accident.

Hager has been at liberty on $1 000 bond since his arrest. Bond for his release was set at the same amount following his conviction yesterday.

Sentence will not be passed by Judge George B. Scofield until three

COLUMBUS "RUINED" AS WAR NEARS END

Capital Red Troops Repulse Attack of Blue Army, However

By International News Service

The 11 day mock war entered its closing stages today.

Intense fighting was reported from the battlefront where the Blue (Dayton) army was pushing hard against the Red army which is defending its stronghold Columbus.

Columbus which was expected to fall into the enemy's hands sometime yesterday still was immune from that army today the Red hitting successfully repulsed the attack.

The entire west side of that city has been destroyed however. In the fighting yesterday the Griggs dam above the city was bombed after a second attempt of the Blue air forces this unloosened more than 2 000 000 000 gallons of water on the city.

Scene of "Ruins"

Coupled with heavy artillery barrages, that portion of Columbus was a scene of ruins today.

Officials of the blue army are confident that they will take Columbus today.

The front line, which originally was at "Big Darby creek, 15 miles west of Columbus, is almost at the outskirts of the city today.

Due to bad flying weather of early morning, aerial attacks were not made, and the maneuvers in the skies were at a standstill today.

Today is to be the last of the war. Armistice will probably be signed tonight.

CAST SCORES HIT IN ANNUAL CLASS PLAY

'Queen's Husband" Adds Big Mark in School Dramatics' History

while he plays checkers with his butler But the set is desperate the lives of people and those of the throne are at stake The king finally be Granton immediately steps to stop the revolution ing the dancing of Prince Anne is enthusiastic for which will end her life for her country

William of Greece in a last moment, and for he must be a ruler joins cheers for the revolutionists reminds him that the ing for a king except symbol to them as his been before them

King Acclaimed

of the revolutionary has been resumed the to the balcony and is with enthusiasm from his

when the third act has returned with royal books of clippings newspapers and in increased idea of her value to her country

Princess Anne receives her royal bridegroom to be, an indifferent, sarcastic and man-of-the-world type whom she loathes more at every glance and word General Northrup acquaints the queen with the fact that her daughter and Granton are in love and the king signs papers for Granton's removal to the Panama Canal

In a moment when the royal prerogative is given an airing Northrup is asked to resign from the dictatorship Dr Hellman one of the revolutionists is appointed premier and Baker another revolutionist a fiery intense man of the people who understands their needs, is pointed

When the queen leaves for the cathedral where the royal wedding is to be solemnized Granton is brought in by orders of the king and in a final second finds himself married to the princess.

When the final curtain falls the king is leaving for the cathedral to return shortly after he has expressed firmly to the queen what he has done

Only a small part of the story has been told with none of the brilliant humor that is prevalent throughout the play and touching only the high spots

Capable Acting

The role of King was splendidly acted by James Reed He made the role of the quiet unassuming and thoroughly democratic king a living breathing, and human being with a love of his people and his daughter and awe of his consort and a realistic portrayal of those whom he knew His role was a difficult one and played up to with all the effect that any actor could possibly get from the lines and action

Miss Jane Guthery the Queen Martha was in perfect accord with her role Regal in appearance and bearing haughty with her orders which were many and at all times never forgetting that she had negotiated the loan and was making a royal match for her daughter the queen swept through the part with all the royal bearing that the role demanded Her gowns were beautifully designed and worn

Princess Anne a role exacting a great deal of dramatic emotion was played with feeling by Miss Evelyn Bachelder She made her audience feel the injustice of the royal marriage and enthusiastic when she was married to Granton In her royal wedding gown she was a vision of vibrant youth and impetuousness

All of the cast should receive great praise for their interpretations of their roles from the hot headed scheming Lord Northrup played by Gerald Zane to the haughty human Lady Joan Artopoeus, who was the bridegroom's partner at checkers

Shipley Applauded

Jane Shipley in the role of Prince William did a fine bit of acting that won him applause when he made his exit from the stage Another commendable short role was that of Lazer the revolutionist, acted by Charles Hacker

Granton, the handsome young man who dared to love the Princess Anne was played by Vance Hallriden

Others in the cast were Lord Barton Fred Chapman Petlev Nels Miller Countess Paula Ann Sneedenlaub Lady Alexandra Mary Jo Stafford Lady Garcia Jane Bradely Countess Mariana Dorothy Bush Major Blent Richard McAninch Dr Hellman Fred erick Merchant Jane Smith Alma Ruth Jacoby Dave Zuspan and Helen Richardson, brides maids Celest, Ilo Smallwood, and soldiers Victor Gillis and Harry Dorsey

The brides maids presented a charming picture in the last act when they appeared ready for the royal wedding

The entire action of the play was laid in the king's office on the second floor of the palace Music of an especially high standard was played by the Harding High school orchestra under the direction of T R Evans Costumes and scenery were from the Imelie Sullivan studios Columbus. Julian Walker was the trumpeter off stage and Dwight Bargar supplied the artillery and gun fire that made the revolution so effective

Hats and corsages of the brides maids were designed by Miss Priscilla Smith with flowers for the stage by the courtesy of the Musser Floral Co The Ohio Associated Telephone Co furnished the telephone used

The staff of the play included L H Shade faculty manager John Pencock stage manager Frederick Haberman assistant Miss Fenore Bouilley play prompter John Waddell student business manager Miss Mildred Crow properties Miss Norma Parker student assistant and Miss Veda Walsh and Robert Smith publicity

Attractive programs of more than usual completeness and beauty were made possible through the efforts of the senior class and a committee made up of John Waddell Frederick Merchant Ann Schoenlaub John Pencock Richard McAninch Jane Smith and Robert Hockstetter They were bound in purple and gold the class colors and were ideal for souvenirs

The Queen's Husband was produced through special arrangement with Longmans Green & Co of New York City It has been given by several universities in the United States and was produced in December by the Stroller club of Ohio State university and this spring by Oberlin college

First Tile Placed in W. Center St. Sewer

The first tile to be dropped in place in the new West Center st sewer construction job was lowered in place this morning by contractors Uncapher & Gillespie It was a part of the 24 inch stormwater line which will extend from Oak st. to Prospect st. where it will be replaced by a 21-inch line and continued to Main st.

Main st was partially closed to traffic this morning as the old electric car tracks were removed and a trench dug across the intersection of Main and Center sts by workers. Traffic going south on Main st. could pass between the temporary track and the curb to reach Center st. proper, but traffic traveling north on Main st. could not pass the intersection.

CITY IN MIDST OF BUILDING ACTIVITY

from the railroads on State st to the intersection of Main and Center sts Excavation for the new sewer on Center st is practically completed from Oak st to Prospect st

Both of these projects are part of the city's street building program which will probably exceed record Mayor Emery Murphy has asked all public utility companies concerned in the paving project to cooperate in rushing the job to completion as rapidly as possible

With new brick paving from Oak through the business district to join that laid last year from Oak to the railroads on Center st Main st resurfaced from the railroads to Columbia and new street lights partially promised to extend over the entire system improved the city will present an entirely different picture before fall

Extensive Building Operations

So much for the streets The reason back of the sidewalk is also showing activity

Work is progressing rapidly on repairs and remodeling of the buildings on the corner of Center and Prospect sts which will be occupied by the J Grant store It is expected that the store will be ready for its opening in July

The concrete foundation for the new J C Penney store building a half block from the project is practically poured Within a short time the building will be under way

The Pure Oil Co yesterday started work on a new bulk plant on North State st The oil company is taking advantage of the street construction work to extend its State st property while traffic is diverted

The Haberman Chevrolet Co expects to start its new building in June 1st The new garage will be located on the site now occupied by the Ohio Spot restaurant and the G W Weeks residence

Daily Proverb—"Better is a neighbor that is near than a brother that is far off."

Three months more, and war will be a thing of the past. It is announced that the League of Nations' peace pact will become active in ninety days. Isn't that glorious?

A thousand quarts of French champagne seized at Norwalk, a story from that place tells us. Some "good, law-abiding citizens" must have been planning to throw some recherche social events

King Vidor and his wife, Eleanor Boardman, are the latest Hollywood lights to be charged with "evading income tax payments." It begins to look as though that efficiency expert in the tax return business retained by so many residents of Hollywood was neither efficient nor expert.

Senator Brookhart has offered a bill to turn adjusted war par, now in the form of certificates with a matured value of approximately $3,400,000,000, into cash. Isn't there grave danger that a proposal such as that may work against the agricultural bonus proposal to which its proponents refer as a debenture?

Mr John O. Cole, of Steubenville, the state prohibition agent who attained fame, such as it is, by using high school girls as decoys, has resigned, which improves the situation somewhat, but even at that, it may be some time before the stench of the exploit is removed from the state enforcement machinery.

The lockout of 75,000 building trades mechanics in New York City has been averted and work will be resumed on $100,000,000 worth of buildings in course of construction while the trouble is being arbitrated. It's good to have such evidences as this that the rule of reason is gaining ground and the policy of stupidity losing out.

Riga is celebrating the day, May 24, the tenth anniversary of the driving out of the bolsheviki by a small volunteer army of Baltic Germans and the ending of the reign of red terrorism established by the Russian Communists four months before. Let us hope that there will soon be added ground for many more such civic celebrations.

The family fortune having been wiped out in the Mexican revolt, Dr. Pedro C. Escobar, brother of the rebel leader, took his life at his home in Nogales, Sonora. That's another danger to be considered before starting a revolution or entering into any other form of violence; the awful price it may exact from those close by ties of blood or friendship.

The Community Fund.

People who dwell in communities automatically assume certain obligations. Among these is the welfare of others in the city.

Every community has within it people who, through unfortunate circumstances, are facing adversity and actually in need.

In order to care properly for the unfortunate of the city, Marion is raising a community fund, that funds may be at hand with which to cope with such situations as may obtain. These funds are to be distributed through different agencies in touch with those who are in need.

Frequent contact has educated these mediums of distribution to the proper manner in which to dispose of funds. It has taught them to know those who actually need assistance and those who do not, and they have learned how to administer it properly.

No one will deny moral obligations in aiding the needy, and it seems that to fulfill these through an agency such as the community fund is not only a boon to those aided, but to the giver as well.

A citizen who gives according to his means can rest assured that he has done his part toward aiding those in his community who are actually in need of assistance.

Accidents and sickness, when funds are not available to give the victim proper treatment, are pathetic. The community fund assures its givers that this can not occur if the fund is raised annually.

Then there is another side to the community fund plan which evokes our admiration; that of character building.

A community in which extreme poverty does not exist, in which there is proper training and recreation for the young, is a fine one in which to live. Such conditions are approaches to the ideal. If they are to exist, the individual citizen must do his or her part to raise the necessary fund. The sum sought may easily be attained if each of us give according to the means we enjoy.

Let's put the community fund over, put it over quickly, and get back to our regular pursuits, happy in the thought that solicitation for philanthropic purposes is ended for another twelvemonth.

Law Enforcement Commission.

No one at this time can say what will be the findings of President Hoover's law enforcement commission or what effect its findings may have in strengthening law enforcement and discouraging crime. But if its investigation and consequent recommendations do not prove of benefit to the cause of law and order it will not be for lack of ability in the personnel of the commission. It is manifest that the president gave deep thought and study to the making of his selections that they both individually and collectively might inspire confidence and command public respect.

How else explain such a group of outstanding citizens as this bi-partisan body of ten men and one woman? Let us list the membership. George W. Wickersham, of New York, the chairman, former attorney general of the United States. Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, former secretary of war. Frank J. Loesch, of Chicago, former vice president of the Chicago crime commission and its active head at a time when Chicago had a crime commission. Roscoe Pound, of Belmont, Massachusetts, dean of Harvard Law school. William I. Grubb, of Birmingham, Alabama, former federal judge. Monte M. Lemann, of New Orleans, president of the Louisiana Bar association. William S. Kenyon, of Fort Dodge, Iowa, federal judge. Kenneth R. Mackintosh, of Olympia, Washington, chief justice of the Washington supreme court. Paul J. McCormick, of Los Angeles, federal judge. Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, Virginia, noted lawyer. Ada L. Comstock, of Cambridge, Massachusetts, president of Radcliffe college.

It would not be natural were we not to hear and read much regarding the make-up of the commission; regarding how nearly it comes to being representative of the geographical divisions of the country. We may see a lot in type regarding its political complexion. Possibly it may be scanned that comment may be made on its leaning, wet or dry. We heard comment along the last-mentioned line before its membership was announced. But we are not especially interested along any of these lines, nor should the public be. It should be enough to know that it is made up of ten men and a woman of high standing, all of whom are of free minds and above influence, and that the great majority of them are trained in the law and the practices of the courts, which is as it should be, for there is general recognition of the fact that what the president has referred to as the nation's "dominant issue" is such largely because of antiquated criminal laws and the court procedures and practices which obtain throughout the country today.

In making the pledge in his inaugural address to appoint such a commission as he has, the president was careful to make plain that his purpose was not to investigate lawlessness along any particular line, but to get down to the root of all lawlessness that conditions which today are a reproach to the nation may be obviated. What he said at that time he has repeated in subsequent utterances, and thus those who may have assumed that the work of the commission is to be centered on prohibition and prohibition enforcement should abandon that assumption. Happily, the scope of its investigations is to go beyond that. It is to go to all forms of defiance of the law and all law abuses which tend to retard law enforcement and thus encourage crime.

A Chicago saloonist has been sentenced to six months in jail and given a fine of $500 for violation of the liquor law. Can it be that Chicago, at this late date, is beginning to take the prohibition laws seriously?

Half a hundred threatening letters from Chicago, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit, Kansas City, Richmond and some from his home city have been received by the Philadelphia magistrate who sentenced "Scarface" Alphonse Capone to a year in jail for toting a gun. Unquestionably, Mr. Hoover was right in denominating crime as the country's "dominant issue."

Richard Washburn Child, author, diplomat and acting head of the National Crime commission, has made public a letter to Chairman George W. Wickersham of the Hoover law enforcement commission, in which he expresses the opinion that distinction should be made between "normal laws" and "governmental commandments." It probably was something of a surprise to Mr. Hoover to learn that he had named a commission of twelve members.

It's rather amusing to read how the southern senators are demanding high penalties for frauds in handling the coming census on which reapportionment will be based, having in mind the fraud the southerners have worked for well over half a century by counting negroes for apportionment purposes without the slightest idea of permitting them to vote.

Hundreds of millions of dollars in paper values were wiped out in New York, Wednesday, as a result of the fear that the federal reserve bank would advance its rediscount rate, six leading stocks showing an aggregate loss of $100,000,000 with General Motors leading with a loss of $12,000,000. And supposedly intelligent people sell their United States bonds to engage in stock gambling with possibilities of a slump such as this!

The expulsion by the Chicago Medical society of Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, because of his presidency of the Public Health institute which treats certain types of disease in charity cases and further offends by advertising, has been upheld by the Illinois State Medical society. The Illinois doctors might have forgiven him for treating charity cases, but it was nothing less than a flagrant affront to professional ethics to employ any form of advertising other than that commonly known as free.

Good Diet Essential

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There are two forms of anemia. In both we find a deficiency in the red corpuscles of the blood, and also in the amount of hemoglobin.

Hemoglobin is a pretty big word. This is the substance that gives color to the blood. Without it the health-giving function of the blood is interfered with seriously.

Since the agents which give color to this fluid are decreased in anemia, we can understand why the skin is so pale. It explains why the lips have not that rosy tint which the person with normal health should possess.

It makes no difference what type of anemia the patient has, there will be loss of strength and vigor. The pulse will be rapid, and frequent palpitation of the heart may disturb the victim. The breathing is rapid, the digestion poor, and the sleep disturbed.

Headache and dizziness are other symptoms. Frequent fainting is not uncommon. Neuralgia pains are felt here and there.

Most of the cases of anemia with which we have to deal are secondary. That is, they are the result of undernourishment, insufficient food, chronic inflammation of the stomach, or a serious disease of some part of the body.

Sometimes the poisons from malaria or another disease may sap the good qualities of the blood. There are certain mineral poisons which have this effect.

Primary anemia is a different condition. We do not find it associated with any other ailment. It seems to come on of its own accord.

While there is a difference of opinion about it, "pernicious anemia" is sometimes given as an example of primary anemia. In any event, it is a serious ailment.

I need not point out that fresh air, sunlight, plenty of rest and sleep and good diet are essential to the cure. Search is made for any underlying source of infection. Particular attention must be paid to a form of anemia occurring in young women, sometimes called the "green sickness" or chlorosis.

I have no desire to draw a distinction between the various types of anemia. My aim today is to speak particularly of the necessity of a liberal diet in these cases.

It is important to give a diet rich in iron. That is the reason why liver and muscle meat are desirable. Green vegetables, fruits, sweet potatoes, lima beans and egg yolk are valuable additions to the diet. Very little fat should be given.

I am frequently asked why fat should be restricted. Many authorities feel that it has a destructive effect upon the blood. Likewise, it is found that digestion is improved when the fats are limited in quantity. On this account, fried food and bacon are not to be recommended. Even butter and cream should be restricted.

I have no doubt that the ultra-violet light has an important place in the treatment of anemia. In my judgment, the time will come when much more attention will be given to this agent. Those who have made use of it are convinced that there is a definite improvement in cases of anemia by regular exposure to the ultra-violet rays.

Editorial Opinion.

DIPLOMACY WINS.

Settlement of the Tacna-Arica controversy between Chile and Peru, after nearly fifty years of fruitless bickering, is a triumph for professional diplomacy.

This old dispute over two provinces, involving profound fellings of national pride and attended by exceedingly legal technicalities, had previously failed of solution both by political and judicial methods.

When Ambassador Carlos Davila, diplomat-editor of Chile, came to Washington in 1927 he decided to cut red tape. He expounded and won support for the idea that the best interests of both Chile and Peru demanded a peaceful settlement, and that the true sentiment in both countries would respond to overtures based on plain friendship.

Davila received cooperation from Secretary Kellogg and the Peruvian ambassador, Herman Velarde, an elderly and sagacious diplomat.

In Lima, American Ambassador Moore, like Davila a diplomat-editor, had an important part in encouraging resumption of diplomatic relations between Peru and Chile.

The visit last winter of President-Elect Hoover to Lima and Santiago confirmed the new bent toward Chile-Peruvian good-will and enabled the negotiations to develop along careful diplomatic lines.

Chile has been in possession of all the disputed territory.

Under the new settlement Chile retains the province of Arica, and Peru gets the province of Tacna; Peru also receives the waterfront, wharves, railway station at the port of Arica, and gets $6,000,000 from Chile. The new boundary will be drawn in a manner to give the city of Tacna a mountain watershed, a difficult point in previous negotiations.

Bolivia is not a party to the present settlement. she now has freedom of the port and her own customs-house at the port of Arica.

The United States government took care to avoid a settlement which would raise any new diplomatic obstacles to Bolivia's aspiration for a territorial outlet to the sea.

Presumably Bolivia will formulate a policy looking toward direct negotiations, either with Chile or Peru, for a corridor through the territory obtained by one or the other. As in the case of Chile versus Peru, the outcome of such a policy will depend largely on the temper of the countries concerned; as well as the more evident economic exigencies involved.

Meanwhile the governments of Chile and Peru are to be congratulated for eliminating one of the potential causes of war in this hemisphere.—Columbus Citizen.

A NATURAL PHENOMENON.

Basing his conclusions on a survey of 10,000 children, William J. Ellis, New Jersey state commissioner of institutions and agencies, told an assemblage of club women that as the adolescent grows older his fondness for home life decreases. He added: "At eleven years, seventy per cent. of the girls questioned and sixty per cent. of the boys, prefer their homes to other places, but from eleven to seventeen years of age, the percentage decreased five per cent. each year for those who preferred their homes as a place in which to spend leisure time."

It would be rather surprising if something of the sort were not true. Aside from consideration of defects in home surroundings, which are many, and because modern conditions of life are growing constantly more numerous and unfortunate, it is entirely natural for the average youngster to become more and more inclined to browse abroad for amusement and entertainment as he acquires years and capacity to think and do things for himself. That is the rule in the whole animal kingdom, and human society could scarcely continue under any other conditions.

For the boy or girl, home ought to be a place to go to and fall back upon and take interest in and enjoy, but it ought also to be a place to go out from in search of friends and recreation, and to acquire widening interests and practical knowledge.—Detroit Free Press.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, May 24—Thoughts while strolling: Everything is blamed on the stock market this season. It used to be infected teeth. George Gershwin's extraordinary long fingers. Chorus-boy types who manage tea-rooms. Child's with soft drink counters. Too many comedians trying to imitate Bert Lahr.

Gordon Rentschler, a Hamilton, Ohio, boy, who made good in the city. Morris Gest is aging. But aren't we all? They say Rudy Vallee's first name is Hubert. Vaudeville "sister acts" wrestling trays during the summer heat. Elderly women in tight-fitting turbans who wear long drop earrings. And smoke cigarets in long holders.

Spatted boulevardiers who carry yellow gloves. Chorus girls in water snake skin shoes. Hope Williams, a Social Registerite, a "lady" in a play of society manners—if any. Pitt B. Bland. Those hard luck guys who haven't time to change from golf clothes for the matinee. Karl Roblitzel, the vaudeville king of the South.

Ethel Watters who is the current Florence Mills. Signs: "What's the Matter With the Theater?" Why go into that? The fellow with Franz Joseph whiskers and Tyrolean hat who peddles papers on Thirty-Fifth street. Ted Cook, the cock-eyed humorist, from Los Angeles, and his tommyish chapeau. Clifton Webb's mustache.

All the summer novels trying to be whimsical and are just too silly. Carl Van Vechten's snow-white hair and violet blue eyes. And what an idol up Harlem way. Ladies with hang-overs trying to be grand-dame-ish. The lorgnette hides the spare tires. An exhibition of wood cuts. Bruce Reynolds canary-toned vest.

Radios should stop plugging worthless stocks. No, but I almost did. Toscanini's double, who runs a shoe shine stand. Billiard matches taking on the lah-de-dah of a fox hunt. Spectators in evening clothes. No smoking during the contest. Hodgkins, my chalk! And let there be no tittering.

The plush that falls over Jersey hills after dark. Like a night moth's velvet wings. Men who lounge against pier crates—and stare out to sea. Women who sit in tenement windows, numb in all emotions. Chorines who sit on fire escapes to await their cue. No so numb, but terribly—but never mind.

He's a country jake. "Right off" is the tipoff.

A new parlor game, now that pat-a-cake and pearl-handled revolver shootings have gone out along aristocratic Park avenue, is writing epitaphs. Not that it matters." But one attributed to Dorothy Parker is my favorite. It reads: "Excuse my dust!"

The Passing of Venus.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

This title does not mean that we are going to lose Venus! No indeed! No such misfortune as that threatens the earth's star-gazers whose numbers are swelling and whose enthusiasm is growing every year. By the reference is to the passing of Venus out of the evening into the morning sky for another of her before-daylight appearances.

Venus is a planet of very near the same size as the earth, but she travels around the sun inside the earth's orbit coming within about twenty-five or twenty-six millions of miles from us when she passes between the earth and the sun, as she did on April 26. Her mean distance from the sun is nearly 67,000,000 miles, while the earth's is near 93,000,000.

Light and heat vary in amount inversely as the square of the distance they travel. Compare the squares of sixty-seven and ninety-three and you find that on account of her relative nearness to the sun, Venus should be heated twice as much as the earth is by the solar rays, unless there are some mitigating circumstances connected with her atmosphere. It appears that there are such circumstances, the most important perhaps being the existence of a greater proportion of water vapor on Venus than on the earth. There are many facts which indicate that her atmosphere is more heavily cloud-laden than ours. This would tend to screen off the solar rays, and ameliorate the climate.

Indeed many astronomers think that there is so much cloud on Venus that no real surface features are visible to us. If you look at her with a telescope you will find her so dazzling that she gleams like a glass ball in the sunshine.

Estimates differ concerning the density of Venus's atmosphere, but if it is as dense as some observations indicate, we may look upon Venus as the home par excellence of aviators of every sort. There, wings would be the most natural organs of locomotion. In the sea, the majority of animals have fins, and other means of flotation, because water is so dense a medium that the animals inhabiting it have nearly the same specific gravity as that of their fluid environment. But our world of air is specifically so light that only some of the smaller creatures inhabiting it are able to rise from the ground and pass at least a part of their lives in the aerial world.

Even a creature endowed with so remarkable an intelligence as man's, has hitherto had to spend uncounted millenia as helpless to avail himself of travel and transportation in the air, as fish are to live out of water. But suppose Venus to possess an atmosphere two or three times as dense as the earth's. In that case we may suppose that the inhabitants would discover and invent the means of flying ages before the same could be done on our light-aired planet. We have now at last stumbled into an application of mechanical force that is conquering for us a new world among the clouds, but the people of Venus may have perfected aerial machines for that purpose as long ago as when the first cave men begged shelter from terrestrial bears and tigers.

More than that, it is permissible to imagine that in the dense air of Venus light structures could be rendered so buoyant that anchored aerial palaces or cities would become possible—as I once ventured to suggest in a "scientific novel." It is not mentally healthful to forever clip the wings of fancy. One might turn oneself into a barn owl by over indulgence in jellectual ponderosities.

Venus is now coming out with great splendor in the morning and "daylight saving"—if it does no other good may do this—that will enable you to catch her bright eye while the birds are serenading her.— Copyright, 1929, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A mechanical appliance known as the "business brain" has been invented. It will do the work of a cash register, book keeping and adding machine, and at the same time make a complete record of a sale in another part of the building. That's about enough in the way of invention. The question arises as to what the human brain, released by machinery from so many duties, is going to do with its leisure hours.

George Eastman, many times a millionaire of Rochester, has cultivated the fine art of spending for the common good. Making a great contribution to a London hospital, he is publicly thanked by the Prince of Wales and Premier Baldwin. The prime minister says American generosity has become proverbial and Americans give in the "wisest direction," for education and toward health.

One reads in the Bible of the hanging gardens of Babylon, built by a generous king to help his wife, who was a hill country woman to forget her home-sickness. The hanging gardens were among the seven wonders of the world. And now the Holland American steamship line announces a new ocean liner with a hanging promenade deck. Man's ingenuity which began a long time ago, is still fresh.

An "Institute of Religion" is to be held in the east in June. Outstanding leaders of the church and religious world will discuss such topics as "The Present Status of the Movement for a United Church," and "The Work Awaiting a United Church" and so on. Much brave talk in the world. In the end it must begin to grow some fruit. One wonders how much time the average citizen gives to definite program for changing his ways.

The attention being given this month to recreation and play and the health of children bespeaks a strain of real civilization in modern life. Money spent for the preservation of the health of the children indicates the intelligent quality of foresight.

Fashion's Forecast

CUTE FOR WEE TOTS

THE STYLE No. 2536 is too cute for words. One would never suspect that it is a one-piece dress with only two major parts to pattern—a front and back section, that is cut in from armhole edges to form yoke, the lower edge of which is gathered and stitched to upper edge. The skirt is treated in same manner cut in at either side of waistline. It can be made as simple or as elaborate as you choose. For play hours, cotton broadcloth with tiny dots in bright red, printed sateen, chambray in pastel shade, wool jersey, or gingham is practical. For "best," fine batiste in pastel tone, printed dimity with sprigged rosebuds or voile is dainty. For parties, omit the sleeves and make it of georgette crepe, taffeta or crepe de chine.

THE PATTERN has a Picture Chart which shows exactly how to make it, and is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew. It is designed in sizes 2, 4 and 5 years and is made with 1¼ yards of 40-inch material in the 4-year size. Emb. No. 730 (blue or yellow) 15 cents extra.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

Hands Unseen

Another Great Mystery Story

FOLLOWING THE ADVENTURESOME "GRAY PHANTOM"

—BY HERMAN LANDON—

TWENTY

"That question has no material importance, of course," Stanhope went on, "but it fascinates me. There is one thing [illegible] chalk marks that may have occurred to you, Dawson. Have you noticed anything remarkable about the position of the head?"

"Why, no," said Vanardy wonderingly.

The lawyer, stooping slightly, followed the tracing with his index finger, starting where the head had been. His trembling hand testified that he was in a state of nervous excitement. Of a sudden Vanardy's companion became more intent. As the lawyer pointed his arm to point at the chalk marks, his sleeve and cuff slipped back, exposing more of his wrist than was usually visible. Just at the point Vanardy saw a purplish stain.

"The head was here," said Stanhope, still indicating the tracings, a slight tremor in his voice. "The face was turned up when the body was found. You will notice that the light from the lamp on the table falls squarely on this spot. If the murderer was bending over Craig when he drove in the knife, as he must have been then it is a certainty that Craig saw his face."

Vanardy scarcely heard him. The purplish stain above the lawyer's wrist absorbed all his attention. At first it seemed only a shapeless smudge, but gradually it assumed a distinct form beneath his narrowing gaze. Obviously it was a tattoo mark of some sort, and presently he could distinguish the head of a woman, surmounted by snakelike formations of hair. It was crude, yet the design was easily recognizable. The figure etched on the lawyer's wrist was a Medusa's head.

"You see, Dawson?" the lawyer went on, obviously obsessed by his theory. "The head was there, where I am pointing, and——"

The words ended in a faint gasp. Quickly the lawyer looked up, and for an instant their eyes met. Stanhope saw the direction of Vanardy's gaze, glanced down at the exposed wrist, and a look of consternation flashed across his face. Hastily, with faces averted he drew the cuff and sleeve down over the purplish mark. For a moment or two he remained in a trancelike position, stooping over the chalk marks. Vanardy could see that a fierce struggle was going on within him but its duration was momentary. When the lawyer looked up again his face was as serene as if the brief interval of consternation had been completely blotted from his mind.

"Not that it means anything," he remarked with a deprecating chuckle. "My poor client, even if he saw the face of his murderer, can't speak. But it is a fascinating speculation, eh, Dawson?"

"Rather, but haven't you forgotten one thing? I understand the room was dark when Miss Wayne and the servants broke in."

"So it was, but the light was still burning when the murderer entered. We have Bell's word for that. He was struck unconscious a moment or two later, but his recollections are clear up to that point. For all we know, the light was on when Craig was murdered. The slayer may have switched it off as he made his departure."

"Possibly," admitted Vanardy. The purplish design intrigued him far more than Stanhope's spectacular but impractical theory. "However, your idea throws no light on the murderer's method of entry and departure."

"True enough." The lawyer smiled, having evidently recovered his composure. "I leave that mystery for you to solve, Dawson. If you see the Gray Phantom, give him my regards. Always had a sneaking admiration for the fellow. Good night."

He went out smiling. Vanardy opened the shutters and the window and let the door stand ajar while a cold draft blew through the room. The head of the Medusa lingered in his vision as he waited for the room to air.

Methodically he shut the window, applied the fastenings, closed and secured the shutters and bolted the door. As nearly as was possible he wanted to reconstruct the scene of the murder, and with that aim in view he made a thorough search, carefully inspecting each piece of furniture, looking under the bed and exploring the shadowy corners of the room. If anything of a mysterious nature happened during the night, he would know that it had its origin in some incomprehensible source which his mind could not at present fathom.

While he made his preparations his mind was full of what he had seen while the lawyer pointed at the chalk tracings. It was evident that Stanhope was acutely sensitive about the design above his wrist for he had been thrown into utter confusion when he realized that Vanardy had seen it. Doubtless he had managed to conceal the mark in the past, but in the excitement of expounding his theory he had forgotten that in the act of stretching his cuff of expounding his theory he had cut his arm he had exposed the upper portion of his wrist. In itself the design was an insignificant thing, but it had instantly struck a responsive chord in Vanardy's memory. While tattooing was common, the use of this particular figure was rare. Quite likely it was unique. Only once had Vanardy heard of a Medusa's head being tattooed on the lower portion of a man's arm, and he was trying to recall the circumstances.

There was a chill in the room, and he sat down before the fire while he searched his memory. He rarely forgot a thing that he had heard, seen or read, no matter how trivial. Usually such things remained hidden in a niche of his memory until he called them up for reference. Somewhere, at some time, he had heard of a Medusa's head being tattooed on a man's arm. When—where—who?

A name leaped into the foreground of his thoughts and the sudden recollection startled him. Only a short time ago he had occasion to refer to that name, although not in this connection. Some one—it must have been Lavery, one of his former associates and now a member of the organization that Wade had built up—had told him several things about the owner of that name, and one of them had to do with a Medusa's head tattooed in precisely the same position as the one he had seen a few minutes ago.

He sat up straighter, animated by an astounding thought. An idea, startling and incredible, was taking shape in his mind. His head whirled dizzily as he sat there trying to clarify his impressions. It was impossible—flatly impossible. The man of whom Lavery had spoken was dead, had been dead for 25 years. And yet——

Vanardy sprung up. A maddening thought was burning in his brain, defying all the arguments with which he tried to beat it down.

"It can't be," he muttered, stroking his dazed head. "Stanhope can't be Jack Frey! Jack Frey is dead!

Vanardy threw another log on the fire and watched it blaze up. The clock on the mantelshelf pointed to midnight, and the observation turned his mind from the jumbled thoughts that had filled it for the last two hours. He glanced in the direction of the door. A few nights ago, at a little past 12, three measured raps had sounded on that door, a sinister prelude to the tragedy that had followed.

In his imagination he tried to picture the scene that had ensued on the three raps. He had to rely on the story told by Bell, for there was no other living witness to what had happened. Bell had opened the door, looked out in the hall and, seeing no one there, had with difficulty been dissuaded by Craig from going out to investigate. The door had stood open only 30 seconds or so, and during this time Bell had occupied the doorway, making it impossible for any one to enter the room that way.

Vanardy's imagination ran on to the climax of the weird episode. After the door had been closed and bolted again Craig had been thrown into a fresh state of terror by finding a note in the chair in which he had sat off and on during the evening. The discovery, following a long series of terrifying incidents, appeared to have upset his reason. Whipping out a pistol, he had flatly accused his companion in the room of being in league with his persecutors.

Bell had given such a vivid description of the old man's frenzy that this portion of the scene was very clear to Vanardy. Now he wondered whether the terror-crazed mind of Craig had seized upon the truth when he accused Bell of treachery. Occasionally, in moments of acute stress, one's perceptions were unusually sharp. At such times the truth occasionally came like a dazzling flash, illuminating all the dark corners of the mind. Had Craig experienced one of those all revealing flashes? To Vanardy it seemed only natural that his suspicions should have turned toward his companion, who to all appearances was the only person who could have placed the note in the chair. Yet Craig might have been mistaken.

Vanardy's mind was still undecided on that point. As far as any one could see at present, Bell was the only person who had an opportunity to commit the murder. It was a forceful argument, but it was hemmed in with contradictions. If Bell were guilty, why had he told a story so damning to his case? Why had he not altered it in certain respects, particularly with reference to the inaccessibility of the room? With Craig dead it would have been easy for him to leave a loophole in his narrative that would offer a theory as to how the murderer entered the room.

He could have appeared less certain, for instance, that no one had slipped past him while he stood in the doorway looking for the person who had delivered the three knocks. But Bell had stoutly denied such possibilities, and to Vanardy this was a strong argument in his favor. Yet it was conceivable, of course, that Bell, even if guilty, had been subtle enough to tell the kind of story that only a man with a clear conscience can afford to tell.

Temporarily dismissing the question of Bell's guilt or innocence from his mind, Vanardy let his imagination carry the scene to its conclusion. As nearly as Bell had been able to fix the time, it must have been about half past 12 when Craig pointed the pistol at him. Bell, at first scarcely realizing that his life was in danger, had tried to reason with the fear-maddened man. Craig had refused to listen to arguments. Bell had seen a look of insanity in his face. Then an interruption had come in the form of a repetition of the three knocks on the door. Bell, hastening to open it, had looked briefly down the corridor, but at the older man's request he had once more locked and bolted the door and resumed his seat. Then there had been still another surprise, the most dramatic of them all. It had come with a suddenness that staggered even Bell's hardened nature. A voice had spoken, a firm masculine voice, but whence it had come no one could tell. In sepulchral accents it had told Craig that his time was at hand. Then there had been an interval of stillness, lasting perhaps a moment or two, and then a well-aimed missile—a heavy inkwell, as it afterward appeared—had sent Bell into oblivion.

What had happened after that? Nothing was definitely known except that Craig had been lying dead on the floor when Miss Wayne and the servants broke in. William had remained at the door while one of the other servants turned on the light. Acting with a presence of mind that one would not have expected from his stolid appearance, he had taken in the scene at a glance, holding his post at the door while the others made a search. It had seemed to William that, if a murder had occurred, the slayer must be still in the room. But the search had failed to reveal a trace of a murderer, and William was certain that no one had passed him while he guarded the door. Neither could the culprit have escaped through the window, for the fastenings on both the window and the shutters were intact.

Vanardy's mind came back to the insurmountable wall that seemed to block all speculations in that direction. Granting that Bell had told the truth, some one must have entered the room in an, as yet, inconceivable fashion. Who—and how?

Sitting in the chair Bell had occupied on the night of the murder, Vanardy glanced up at the clock. Seven minutes past 12. No sound was heard in the room save the blithesome ticking of the clock and the snapping of the logs.

"Who?" he asked again. "And how?"

By a circuitous route his mind went back to Stanhope. It was rather odd, all things considered, that the lawyer should have placed such marked emphasis on the question of whether Craig had seen his murderer face to face. It was a useless speculation, having certain dramatic elements, but devoid of practical interest.

It was curious that such an inconsequential matter should have excited the lawyer so profoundly that his hand trembled when he pointed at the chalk marks. Lawyers, as Vanardy had observed, were not usually so excitable. And Stanhope, judging from what little he had seen of him, had a rather phlegmatic temperament.

As for the Medusa's head on the lawyer's arm, it was either utterly meaningless, or else it had a profound significance in relation to the mystery of Tuckaway camp. If meaningless, why had Stanhope shown such agitation when he realized that he had carelessly exposed it to Vanardy's view? On the other hand, if the tattooed design meant all that it might mean, then——

But Vanardy's speculations stopped there. Frey was dead, so a conclusion that would otherwise have seemed inevitable was by reason of that fact clearly out of the question. Yet the possibility continued to tantalize his imagination. There was a chance, if only a very slight one, that Frey was not dead, that the report of his death had been incorrect. It would not have been the first time that a person had reappeared on the scene of life after his supposed death. It was possible, though far removed from the range of ordinary probabilities that such a thing had happened to Frey. Granting that it had, it seemed quite natural to suppose that——

Again Vanardy held his imagination in leash. There was a temptation to give it free swap, to leap all the hurdles that logic and reason put in the way, but something held him back. Moreover, even if his fantastic suspicion should prove true, it did not explain how the murderer had entered the room.

The fire was burning low again, and evidently the night was growing colder, for there was a chill in the air. Vanardy put two more logs on the andirons, glanced at the clock again, noted that it was a quarter past 12, and, feeling no desire for sleep, sat down. He was thankful to William for having provided him with an ample supply of wood. The chair was comfortable and the fire was emitting a grateful warmth. If he could only arrange his mental processes along an orderly line! If only the Medusa's head he had seen on the lawyer's arm would not constantly insinuate itself into his mind and divert his thoughts into realms of wild speculation! If only——

In an instant he was on his feet, gazing fixedly at the door. A sharp rap sounded, then a second, finally a third. Then silence.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Made Fears Reawakening of Her Old Love Will Mean Repression of Her Ambitions.

THE hour following my return from my interview with Philip Veriten was not the first in which I had faced the fear—I write the word deliberately—that my old tempestuous, torturing love for my husband might be breaking through the layers of perfunctory calmness which I had laid over it. I had realized, for instance, that any mention of Edith Fairfax was enough to rouse my jealous anger, but I had hoped—again there is intent in my choice of words—that my jealousy did not spring from love, but from that infinitely meaner emotion, wounded pride of possession.

For with the memory of years of stormy life with Dicky, years during which I had alternated between dizzy heights of rapture and abysmal depths of suffering, I had come to feel that I prized more than anything else the calmness, the freedom from poignant mental suffering which my new pact with him had brought me. True, there were occasional bitter moments when I felt as might one banished from Eden, but for the most part I was able to let my common sense rule my emotions and find ease and freedom in my new scheme of life.

But Lillian's revelation—I never have found it worth while to doubt her almost psychic knowledge of Dicky's mental processes—that my husband's jealousy was rooted in his old dawning love for me, had swept aside the barriers I had so carefully built up around my soul, and for a bitter but rapturous moment I faced the truth—that I could no more put Dicky out of my heart than I could thrust Junior out of it.

Career or Love?

I faced something else, however, stronger than my love for him. That was my knowledge—bitterly bought—that I must not purchase a reconciliation with him by giving up my individuality and my work. Sad experience had told me that my Peter Pan crawl the elusive. If Lillian were right in her conjecture, and I did not doubt it, the surest method of killing his revived feeling for me would be to drop back into my old submissive attitude toward him, repressing the ambitions which had been mine from childhood, and which seemed now to be in process of realization.

I did not stand alone upon this premise. My father, Lillian, Katherine, even Dicky's own mother occasionally, had told me this truth in various forms for years. With the memories of their counsels bolstering my own determination, I gradually fought my tempestuous emotions back to sanity and then covered them again under deep layers of deadening calmness. There was too much on my shoulders for the next few months to permit myself to be distracted by anything in the world save my small son. Fortunately, things had so shaped themselves following his fall that it really would be better for him to stay at the farmhouse with Katherine and his grandparents than to be with me. But I knew that at any needed call from him my work, my career, anything in the world, would go by the board.

Veriten Phones Dicky.

The sound of the telephone shrilling an insistent call brought me out of my reverie with a jerk. But when I reached the hall I heard Katie at the downstairs telephone.

"Yah!" With a rueful little smile I realized for the thousandth time that never could I hope to get Katie to answer a telephone properly. "Dees eez Graham's house. Who dees? Ah-yah, Meester Veriten. I call Meesis Graham. Yot dat? No? Meester Graham? Yah! He outside in yard. I call heem in."

I heard the sound of her footsteps hurrying toward the door. Then they came racing back again, and she screeched into the telephone, "Hold the line," and dashed back again toward the door, while I leaned against the doorpost, helpless with laughter at the mental image of my stately employer at the other end of the line listening to Katie's absurdities of diction and manner.

But laughter soon gave way to uneasiness. What on earth did Philip Veriten want of Dicky? He already had tacitly agreed to my dictum that he was not to come near the farmhouse, and was to come to us for the first time upon the day after we were settled in the hotel.

I knew that my employer possessed a somewhat Puckish humor, and was also utterly careless as to the effects of his display of it. I guessed that he had seen through Dicky's elaborate pretense of cordiality at the inn. Had he devised some cunning scheme for further annoying my temperamental husband?

A barrel-stave hammock has its good points compared with a cordage one that folds you up like a caterpillar playing 'possum.

Mary Bradley Tells Tale of Tiger Hunt

STALKING the traceless jungles of Indo China for the elusive tiger the folk wavs of the matrimonial tribes of Sumatra provide Mary Hastings Bradley with material for the magnificent tale of travel and adventure in "Trailing the Tiger Appleton

In recording the tiger hunt that is the author her husband her nine-year old daughter and two members of the University of Chicago out of Africa into Indo-China Mrs Bradley writes with zest and a sense of the picturesque After a long stay among some cannibal tribes of Africa Mr Bradleys party decided that the orange and black striped skin of a tiger would best complete their homeward bound luggage They left Africa where no tigers are hurried through India where elephants and native beaters have made tame this sport and embarked for Sumatra Here they came upon the paradise of the Lucy Somers Under the customs of these tribes the women not only retain their names but their children and the dwellings in which they live and are bothered by their husbands only on occasional visits As a compensation the man is allowed four legal wives and as many others as his abilities may obtain for him

The climax of Mrs Bradleys story is the killing of a regal black and orange beast in the hills of Annam Weeks of discouraging search on the trail of reported tigers Hours of patient waiting behind protecting screens near the carcass of a dead buffalo preceded the thrilling moment when Mrs Bradley pointed her gun at the beast whose skin she now displays

Anniversary Program

SATURDAY RADIO EVENT

Honors Victor Herbert

BY MAC L. ROY

RADIO will pay a musical tribute to Victor Herbert on the fifth anniversary of his death when a program of melodies composed by the famous composer will be broadcast over the WJZ network of the NBC system at 9 o'clock Saturday night.

The commemorative program will go on the air from the grand ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton hotel, New York City, with famous musical personages and lifelong associates of Victor Herbert participating. John Philip Sousa, Harold Sanford, Maj. Edward Bowes, S. L. Rothafel, Fritzie Scheff, Sigmund Romberg, Augustus Thomas, Frank Crozton, Julius Witmark and Gene Buck, all friends or associates of the Irish-American composer, will appear in the one-hour broadcast.

Perennial popular songs from Herbert's light operas mingle with several of his most famous ballads and orchestral compositions in this program. The waltz song, "Kiss Me Again", from "Mlle. Modiste", will be sung once more by Fritzie Scheff, famous light opera star for whom Herbert wrote the work. Sousa will conduct the "March of the Toys", and Harold Sanford will lead the orchestra in selection from "Eileen" and other operettas. Frank Crozton will interpret the celebrated "Gypsy Love Song" from "The Fortune Teller."

Several of the younger lights in radio will also be heard during the commemorative broadcast. These include Jessica Dragonette, soprano, in "Twilight in Barakesh" from "Rose of Algeria"; Colin O'Moore, tenor, singing "Love Boat", with orchestral accompaniment; and Mary Hopple, contralto, offering "'Neath the Southern Moon" from "Naughty Marietta". Gladys Rice, soprano, Yascha Bunchuk, 'cellist, and Arcadie Birkenholz, violinist, will also be featured. The vocal ensemble will consist of Muriel Wilson, Kitty O'Neil, Richard Hochfelder, Walter Preston and Charles Robinson.

Augustus Thomas, playwright, will deliver the speech of tribute, while Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, sponsors of this annual observance, will be master of ceremonies.

OTHER PRESIDENTS HAVE BEEN SOLONS

Coolidge Finds Precedent If He Should Desire Congressional Seat

WASHINGTON, May 24—If Calvin Coolidge "chooses" to represent his home state of Massachusetts, either in the house or in the senate, and Massachusetts voters "choose" to let him, he will set no precedent, but will simply be following in the footsteps of another Bay State president, John Quincy Adams.

Though the second John Adams returned to Washington after leaving the executive mansion, he has had but two successors, who have followed his example, though several others have returned to the capital in national roles in various routes.

The second Adams returned to his home at Quincy, Mass., following the popular election of Gen. Andrew Jackson in 1829, but soon after was elected to represent his sate in the house of representatives, where he remained until his death in 1848.

Returns to Senate

Andrew Johnson of North Carolina who found himself president in the turbulent times after the assassination of Lincoln, returned to Tennessee, the home of his choice, after his stormy executive career, and in 1875 was elected as a United States senator by the "Volunteer" state. He died shortly after.

Former President Taft returned to private life in 1912, following the "Bull Moose roundup" of Theodore Roosevelt, but was appointed chief justice of the supreme court of the United States in 1921, where he has since presided.

One other former president stepped upon the national stage after retirement, but briefly and in the hectic days of the slavery question. He was John Tyler of Virginia.

Like Johnson, Tyler inherited the office of chief executive. He fell heir to the presidency upon the death of William Henry Harrison, (Tippecanoe) in 1841. Nearly 20 years later he was elected by Virginia to the Confederate congress, but died before that body assembled.

Three New Yorkers, who retired from the presidency, later essayed a return to the White House, or at least the capitol, but failed of popular support.

Other Attempts

Martin Van Buren was the first. Vice president during the second term of Andrew Jackson, he succeeded "Old Hickory" as chief executive and after four years went out of office in the "Log Cabin" campaign of "Tippecanoe and Tyler too" in 1841. In 1848 Van Buren's name led the national ticket of the "Free Soil" party, but he was defeated in what was to be the last victorious national campaign of the Whig party. Gen. Zachary Taylor, Indian and Mexican fighter, was the successful candidate.

President Taylor died soon after his inauguration and was succeeded by Millard Fillmore of New York, in 1850. Fillmore finished the term and retired. Seven years later he attempted to lead the remnants of the Whig party in a three-cornered race. Buchanan and Breckenridge, Democrats, were elected. Col. John C. Fremont, the California "Pathfinder," headed the first Republican ticket. Fillmore carried only one state, Maryland. That was the end of the Whigs as a national power.

Popular as was Theodore Roosevelt, during and after his stay in the White House, he succeeded in accomplishing nothing except to put Woodrow Wilson in, and kept Taft out, in the national campaign of 1912.

GEORGIA MAN WRITING NEW BOOK ABOUT QUAIL

THOMASVILLE, Ga.—H. L. Stoddard, who for five years has been making a study of the quail, will shortly go to press with a book on the subject.

A few of the things he has learned about quail, Stoddard says, is that they do not range far from where they are hatched; that many times more eggs and young birds are destroyed than ever reach maturity, and that the bird's greatest enemies are snakes, skunks and 'possums.

LAUGHING IN THEATER RETURNS LOST SPEECH

BERLIN—By laughing at the jokes of a humorist in a theatre, Walter Schutze, 28, regained his speech which he had lost for years.

The day after enjoying the jokes of his colleague he was able to say the first few words for years.

Physicians said that the laugh had released the paralysis of his vocal cords and that now there was hope that his speech would be completely restored.

WHITE EGYPT DONKEY IS LAWN MOWER POWER

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass.—One of the queerest sights in this section, and one which gives many visitors a hearty laugh, is the 27-year-old white Egyptian donkey which draws a lawn mower over the estate of William A. Paine in this town.

The animal was brought from Egypt for the amusement of children but as the children outgrew the donkey, he was used to provide motive power over the large lawn on the Paine estate.

Another Page Is Turned in History of Olean Building, Former Factory Site

Age of Historic West Side Property Passes to H. A. Ammann

Structure Formerly Housed One of City's Early Industrial Concerns

A new page was turned in the history of one of Marion's most important properties yesterday when the Olean Realty Co. selected H. A. Ammann, Marion realtor, to lease and operate 210-foot property on West Center st. Mr. Ammann now has an option on this property.

The Olean block is part of a tract of land, first used by the Marion Manufacturing Co., one of Marion's early industrial concerns which after years of operation went into bankruptcy and later ended in a receivership, after which the property was divided and sold. The Olean block itself is the same one constructed in the late 80's by the Marion Manufacturing Co., with the exception of remodeling work necessary to convert the old factory room into storerooms and seven second floor apartments.

Built in 1888

When the Marion Manufacturing Co. erected buildings in 1888 on West Center st. it built threshing machines and attachments, as well as operating a boiler shop and foundry. Later an addition was made to manufacture separators and also to house the woodwork department of the entire plant. In 1898, when John J. Hopkins was president, a fire destroyed the wood department, which was immediately rebuilt.

A change in management was followed by bankruptcy proceedings for the company about 1906. Bastable acting as trustee in bankruptcy for several months. He was succeeded as trustee in bankruptcy by Warren G. Harding, late president, who terminated the activities of the company.

The Ohio Tractor Manufacturing Co. was organized, taking over the entire grounds for its plant. This company operated between 1909 and 1913, turning out road machinery, etc. Newton M. Miller, now collector of internal revenue at Columbus, and a close friend of the late Senator Frank B. Willis, was president of the company. Adverse business conditions resulted in the appointment of a receiver and the company was dissolved.

Land Divided

It was at this time that the land extending from 430 to 458 West Center st. and running from Center st. to the railroad tracks in the rear, was divided among several purchasers. The Olean Really Co. was formed expressly for the purchase of 210 frontage, 100 feet deep. The Houghton Sulky Works purchased a part of the property facing on Leader st. which it used in a project to manufacture motor driven hearses. This business later suspended and the building is now leased to the Marion Glass Co. for shops, a part to the Moore & Ross Ice Cream Co. for stables, and another part to Tom Kerrigan for his tailoring and dry cleaning shop.

Kerrigan has leased a room in the Olean building for five years beginning June 1, according to F. B. Dwyer, agent for Mr. Ammann who had charge of the property. Kerrigan will continue his dry cleaning and tailoring shop which has been on the premises of the old Marion Manufacturing Co. since the dissolution of the Ohio Tractor Manufacturing Co. This room will be remodeled, Dwyer said today. Other rooms are occupied by Ernest P. Welsh, second hand store, 448 West Center st. Salvatore Farruggio, fruit dealer and the Mrs. Mary Leaney restaurant, and Dingler's barber shop. The seven apartments on the second floor are all occupied, Dwyer said.

Origin of Name

An interesting history lies back of the name of the Olean Realty Co., according to Attorney C. C. Fisher, who was legal advisor for the Marion Tractor Co. for some time when it was active. He relates that the first charter for the Erie railroad running between Salamanca and Dayton, nearly 40 years ago, was secured under the name of the Olean Railroad Co. The track then ran around east of the property of the Marion Manufacturing Co. down to the yards just outside Marion Steam Shovel Co. grounds, where it now joins the main lines. When the company built its first track, near the year 1865 a deep excavation was made near Park blvd., which soon became filled with water. This was the favorite haunt of boys in the neighborhood, for both summer swimming and winter skating, Mr. Fisher recalls.

The pond soon was christened the "Olean," pronounced O-lee-an with accent on the first and last syllables. This pond remained there until Edward Huber purchased the ground and filled the pond in 1883. The pond was located just across Center st. from the present Olean building on the present site of Park blvd. When the company was formed to purchase the Olean building, the name was suggested by the historic pond, which was "the" Olean of many years ago.

Mr. Ammann says that land adjoining the Olean building will be placed on the market, the first time that it has been offered for sale since the property came into possession of the Olean Co.

UMBRELLA MAKERS FIGHT BUDAPEST LUXURY TAX

BUDAPEST—Umbrella-makers in this little country are up in arms over the recent proposal to include the useful objects among those liable to a luxury tax. Twelve years ago 370,000 of the umbrellas used in Hungary were imported from foreign countries.

This number has now fallen to 13,000 which means that the makers

NEW AIR LINE PLANNED FOR MIDWEST CITIES

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Officials of the Universal Aviation corporation, operators of air mail and passenger lines between Kansas City, St. Louis and Omaha, are making preparations for the opening of an additional line. The new line will operate between St. Louis, Kansas City, Columbus, Cleveland and Toledo.

The single-motored Fokker planes, which are being used on the St. Louis-Omaha line, will give way to trimotored Fokker planes carrying twelve passengers.

A jug of cold water poured over the back of the head, followed by a rub with a rough towel, is one cure suggested for insomnia.

Wild and Woolly West is Galloping Into Oblivion

NEW YORK, May —Save the wild west for those who love the spacious apertures of nature and its beauties, for those who dream of a place to stretch without being stymied by a rib, where the fragrance of auto gas is supplanted by the aroma of the woods, where fish are in streams instead of in aquariums and where a man can be a roughneck and a girl may sing like a bird without fear of being put out of the apartment house.

This is the mission of T. [illegible] ("Teejo") Cahill, former cowboy and rancher, of Cheyenne, Wyoming, who comes east as impresario for the Dude Ranchers' Association, composing more than 100 ranches in Wyoming and Montana.

"THE wild and woolly west is disappearing like a jack rabbit before a dose of buckshot," declared Teejo' mournfully. "It's making its last stand and its not so woolly as it looks. You folks better come out and help us folks keep it clear of road hogs, book agents and submarines. You folks better come out and see it before it ain't.

"Why only a year ago, I saw a small plane get off its route and practically nersuade a herd of antelope up in the Big Horn Mountains. Those poor critters were so frightened by the noise of the motor that they drove themselves on the rocks and broke their legs to pieces."

Cahill said that even the big herds of cattle were disappearing due largely to homesteading and reclamation work. More cattle are being raised on the farms of Iowa, Illinois and the midwestern states than ever before and the grain fed cattle are replacing the grass fed beef, he said.

THE dude ranch regions are in the Absaroka Mountains, on Cody, Wyoming, the Bighorn Mountains, on Sheridan, Wyoming, the Bear-Tooth and other mountain ranges in Montana ranched on Billings, Red Lodge, Big Timber, Bozeman, Gardiner, Missoula or Glacier Park, Mont.

The largest dude ranches accommodate 150 guests while there are numerous small ranches catering to the dull trade. Guests are encouraged to take part in all the ranch activities including the larnat and branding iron work.

"Teejo" assured me that the term "dude" was no derogation.

"A 'dude' is any feller who hasn't been in the habit of working around a ranch," said Cahill. "Many dudes come out to us and go loco over the west so that they buy in ranches as an investment in property and long life. We got several sons of millionaires who came out as dudes and now are running some of our best known ranches.

"And there's lots of dudes what can ride and fish and hunt as well, if not better'n the boys on the ranch. Not that it makes any difference if you can ride or hunt or fish—that's what the dude wranglers are there for to teach visitors."

"AND another thing," confided "Teejo." "There's a lot of girls what come out to the dude ranches—college girls and working girls and mighty pretty girls. And lots of those dude girls meet their fate out there—"

"You mean that they fall for the big, healthy he-men cow punchers?" I inquired romantically.

"Not so much cowboys," said "Teejo" regretfully, "but for the other dudes they meet. The life out there is conducive to romantics."

"I suppose the cowboys ain't as tough as they used to be and don't use so many guns in each hand?" I asked, trying to catch the spirit of the west.

"The old time cowpuncher never was tough," said "Teejo." "That's all moving picture talk. They never wore gold spurs nor red-white-and blue chaps—that's the fancy stuff in the pictures. The old-time cowboy was just a deep-breathing cuss who liked to see the sun go up and down and do what he wanted as long as it hurt nobody. Of course, he was liable to light if you got in his way but he never went looking for trouble."

"Teejo" also doesn't think that his cowboys are a bit more tough than we Easterners.

"Why, say, there's no bucking bronco any worse than your subway during the rush hour and if you don't pull leather occasionally, you are plump crazy," he said.

"TELL me, Teejo," I asked, "If they call them dudes on a dude-ranch, why isn't a dude girl guest called a duchess?"

"I never thought of that," said "Teejo," reaching up under his four-quart hat to scratch

TAKES FRENCHMAN 26 YEARS FOR DIVORCE

Paris Magistrate Doesn't Believe These Quick-Decree Stories

PARIS, May 24—Americans may come to Paris and obtain a divorce in 20 days, it has been charged, but M. Dupont, local French magistrate and lawyer, does not believe it. His own case, instituted 26 years ago, has been postponed by the Seine Tribunal for hearing later in the Spring.

In 1903, the Duponts married, quarreled and separated. M. Dupont, at that time a young clerk in an attorney's office, filed petition for divorce. Dupont, a grey haired, dignified lawyer, is still waiting to get it.

Created Scenes

The domestic troubles began in a series of quarrels soon after the marriage. Mrs. Dupont, now a portly matron but a slender bride in those days, would come into her husband's office during working hours and create scenes, causing him to be ridiculed by his fellow workers. Besides, there was the danger of M. Dupont's boss dispensing with his services on account of the annoyance.

Madame Dupont did not want a divorce, however. She fought the case every step of the way, until the World War broke out, when it was pigeon-holed and forgotten along with many others of its kind.

After the war, the musty records in the case were taken off the shelves, and M. Dupont could withdraw from the battle at the front only to enter the domestic fight.

Appeal Denied

In 1923, a lower court denied the divorce. M. Dupont appealed. The case is now in superior court, waiting to be heard whenever the judges feel that they have the time to spare.

In the meantime, the legal knowledge of the lawyer and magistrate Dupont stands him in good stead. He devotes a good part of every day to the study of his own case.

Summer Chicks Pay Well

The Erlay Poultry Farm of Delaware, Ohio, has announced that they soon will be cutting down their capacity so that only summer orders will be filled. They point out that there is good money raising chicks during the summer time and for some weeks yet, will have chicks available. However, chicks should be ordered in advance if they are to be secured during the coming weeks. There are some chicks available for immediate delivery for those that need them.

Custom hatching can always be provided for if the customer prefers. However, the high quality of the chick put out from the selected flocks of the Erlay Poultry Farm is such that most buyers prefer chicks from the hatchery. Details can be secured by writing or calling the Erlay Poultry Farm of Delaware, or 28 W. Duncan Street, Columbus, Ohio.—Adv.

Blondes to Background, Typical California Girl Today Is Brunette

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24—Blondes to the background—the typical California girl of 1929 is a brunette.

One of those warm brunettes with the peach skin that you love to touch and hazel eyes.

The definition comes from Mrs. M. Pearl Newman and she ought to know for she is president of the State Board of Cosmetology and one of San Francisco's leading hairdressers.

She says there are ten brunettes to every blonde (natural or peroxide) in the Golden State.

Blondes Rare

"Blonde girls are much rarer in California than brunettes," Mrs. Newman declares. "Pure blondes are even a greater rarity, and naturally they are harder, perhaps, for gentlemen to find.

"There are blue blondes, or pale pink blondes or strawberry, peach, ash, gold or red blondes. A pale pink blonde usually has a strawberry complexion, and china blue or moss green eyes.

"A blue blonde as a rule has an almond skin, and sometimes hazel or light brown eyes.

"But it's the brunette with the hazel or medium brown eyes that is our typical California girl this year.

Eighteen Shades

"There are eighteen distinct shades of hair, and eighteen different colors of eyes, as well as twelve different complexions among the white race, so that it can be seen what a great variety of combinations is possible."

Although blondes are in a great minority, Mrs. Newman pointed out that they, more than brunettes, find it necessary to touch up their hair with tints or dyes.

"Only rarely is blonde hair 'wearing'—that is, only rarely will it retain its youthful lustre as the years advance," says Mrs. Newman.

"The more numerous but less troublesome brunette heads do not so frequently encounter this difficulty, and from estimates that one in fifty women in the United States are compelled to tint or dye their hair, it is safe to say that seventy in each hundred of these are blondes."

But gentlemen need not fear, according to Mrs. Newman, because there is no sign of an acute shortage of blondes.

THEATER FLOODED

Water Pours Into Center st. Building from Sewer Line

Buckets were used by workmen of the Marion Water Co. to bail out the orchestra pit of the Marion theater when the backstage and pit were flooded yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. No damage was done.

When contractors building sewers in West Center st. struck a one and a half-inch water line yesterday while excavating, an attempt was made to stop the flow of water by turning a water valve on Center st. The valve had been closed, however and turning it released water pressure in pipes that had formerly been empty. Some of these ran to the Marion theater. Taps had been used for water protection, but had been disconnected when fire extinguishers were installed.

Some of the boosters of the city were sprinting over the pavements ... prodding people on the back exclaiming over the freshness of the morning air roaring about the wonderful possibilities of a fund campaign and booming out a request for only five times 5 little dollars

Everyone joins the spirit of the campaign though and it's going over with a bang that only hearty cooperation from everyone could merit

Helpful Suggestion

It's really remarkable the bright ideas that are going around Marion with no one to take them up and disguise the own

This one is on a druggist again Why druggists think of so many of these things it is impossible to say—probably because they haven't anything else to do

This particular juggler of pills and teaspoons suggested Thursday that after the next big rain it might be profitable to get the state fish and game department to contribute several dozen fish to the city of Marion Upon receipt of the finny creatures they would be put to swim in the new dirt hole in the middle of Center st for the pleasure of the employes of the city police and fire departments

This druggist is a thrifty soul perhaps that's why he thought of it

Summer Worries

UNTIL about the first of July it will become almost imperative that Marion merchants hang up signs We do not do banking on Wednesday afternoons

Many a thoughtless person ambles uptown on Wednesday afternoon to take care of his thousand dollars only to meet a notice that This bank is closed on Wednesday afternoons from May until September

Then it is up to the merchant to cash checks all afternoon or refuse to and lose good customers for his merchandise

It won't be long now until Marion women will put on their finery to go shopping Wednesday afternoon only to find that the stores are closed The clerks have their well deserved holiday coming

Out of Season

DECORATION day and incidentally a vacation is upon the city of Marion and yet there are people who have not yet completed their Christmas celebration liquidly and otherwise

An Essex Sedan was seen jogging down Main st the other day bearing several occupants and dangling a Christmas wreath from the rear window The poor little wreath it was undersized to begin with had shrunk with five months ageing was dusty and faded and was brave in trying to bear up under the weight of a single spray of felt poinsettia

Street Entertainment

WOULDN'T it be great to have 10 ... isolate ... okes ... g ... various ... point along Center st arrange the drinks to suit ... so ... comfortably and spend the afternoon watching the men who are doing such a glorious job of tearing up Marion's roller coaster highway of dips and bumps and bottomless pits

That greedy steam shovel being used on the car track repairing is almost human Like many a person it waits until it is sure of getting all it can accommodate before it makes the fatal live and plunge The man who operates the shovel is a wizard and we don't mean maybe He can make that little old shovel dig down into the depths of Center st and tug and shove until the great scoop is full to the brim and then he swings it to the truck No half way portions for that scoop

But many people don't need the promise of a cooling coke to make them stand for hours watching the fascinating work There are two men from The Star office who spent most of their time on the sidewalk when the shovel was twisting and turning its way down State st Since that part of the work is done they may be seen there at most any hour, hobnobbing with friends and figuring idly on work time pay, etc.

Modern Job Hunter

IT'S all right for a woman to smoke if she does it in a mild way this reporter thinks but after observing one of Marion's fair damsels the other day the above writer of [illegible] gives that it should be done extremely mildly The young girl was waiting in an office for an appointment apparently for a position

'That young lady would have gotten so far as the door marked Out with the average man and the man she was to see was quite above the average There is a scent about a man's clothes after he has smoked cigars for some time that can't be removed

Evidently this girl had been smoking regularly every 15 minutes for the past two years from the smell of her clothing Perhaps she got the girl but two to one she didn't Maybe she believed the recent nationwide advertisement [illegible] for a cigaret instead of a sweet

Arrest Two Women for Operating Hills Stills

CHILLICOTHE, May 24—Three gallons of alleged moonshine whisky was sufficient evidence for Sheriff Fox and his aids to arrest Mrs. Enos Sparks and Mrs. Dallas Rush yesterday after the law enforcers discovered three stills in the Harrison township hills.

The sheriff and his men found the stills when they were making a tour of the district, but at the time no one was present. Lying hidden, the men waited. Presently the two women appeared, started fires, and soon the process of distilling the illicit liquor was under way.

After three gallons were "run off" the women were taken into custody and removed to the Ross county jail.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M LEWIS

Friday The first day of school I jumped out of bed and let Bub have the top in his teeth and then I got into my britches and went downstairs The girl in the kitchen and the way I made the biscuits scrabbled the grease and went scrooching to the barn and went to milking the horned heifers while the old cow kindly watched

The young cow had got as much sense as the old cow which has been around boys so long that she don't trust nobody But when I had bounced the milk stool off of her big bone and told her she'd had better kind still she did—till I got to milking and then she only switched her tail across my face instead of mine as she'd always been to before because she'd put one hind foot in the milk pail and upsetted her tail around my neck and pulled me off of my stool I always got my all dirty before I got through as slow as anything and acted at me like I was a bug or something I wiped my hands on her tail and got her foot out of the pail and went to milking and the next time she swished me across the face with her tail I wished I had wiped my hands on something else

When I had washed up in the barn pail and had went in I asked my mother if she was going to let Annabelle Lee go to school with me and she said she should say not She didn't want anyone to [illegible] her with her horns as she looked like a cross between a Mexican dog and a cause of mange and I felt so safe that I began to coax her to let me tide her and all at once he said "All right I told you you might take her and you can I don't know if I made a noise like one or not, but I felt like a tire that was going flat I had told the bunch how smart I was in getting her to cut her hair and how I wouldn't have to take her to school and they certainly did hooray me when I came out of the house with her But when I got to school with her Younass borrowed her off me so everything was all right Younass showed everyone how she had cut her own hair and they all thought it was a scream If I had kept her all the girls would of been gathered around me like they were around Younass I ain't so very brite sometimes,

We had speaking of pieces, and that is what the Lost Bag of Tripe likes He was on the platform speaking on shams when some automobile made a noise like they had crashed and the Lost Bag of Tripe turned his head to look at them and when he turned it back it got back just in time for his face to meet a rotten apple He stopped speaking and the teacher came in and looked at him and he was a sight He looked like he was boiling over with pleasure The teacher didn't even ast who done it And when school let out we went out like a lot of Indians, only the girls crowded around and kissed the teacher

What kind of carbon do you buy for your motor?

THE presence of carbon in an automobile engine shows that oil has reached vital areas where heat is most intense. Due to the heat, some of the oil naturally will be burned But the carbon formed need not be excessive and it must be harmless.

Many oils, fine lubricants in other respects, leave excessive carbon of a hard and flinty nature. The small amount of carbon which forms in an engine lubricated by Shell Motor Oil is soft, fluffy and non-fouling. It does not cling to moving parts or bake on metal surfaces.

Automotive engineers will tell you that the most difficult points to lubricate are the wrist pin bearing and the space between the top inch of the cylinder wall and the upper piston ring.

Shell engineers have developed an oil which reaches these parts—and all parts of an automobile engine. But it leaves only a negligible amount of soot-like carbon when burned.

Regular users of Shell Motor Oil report [illegible] surprising freedom from carbon troubles . . . fewer carbon removal jobs . . . no power losses due to pitted valves or "frozen" piston rings But more than that . . . they enjoy the complete satisfaction which comes from a smooth, sweet-running engine.

Shell Motor Oil is today's outstanding achievement in the science of automobile lubrication—the motor oil with all four essentials of complete and thorough lubrication: Little Carbon . . . Soft Carbon . . . Body . . . and Low Pour Point.

Refined by the new Shell-developed, low-temperature process from crude which is produced in Shell's own vast fields. Never scorched or weakened by the high temperatures of ordinary refinery practice. Tested 259 times to check and certify the rich, unvarying quality of every quart.

STOP AT THE SIGN OF THE SHELL —and let the Shell Lubrication Chart be your guide. You'll find courteous salesmen at the yellow and red service stations. Convenient everywhere.

To the man who drives a high-compression engine—we say: "Try Shell for 30 days"

SHELL MOTOR OIL has the 4 essentials of complete and proper lubrication

Noted Entertainers To Be Heard in School Program

Will Durant, the Russian Cossacks, Maurice Hindus, "Big Pond," the Hayes Sisters and the S. S. Henry Co.!

This is the colorful, educational and entertaining lecture course bought by the class of 1930, Harding High school, for presentation next winter to patrons of the high school course programs. The selection was made Wednesday night by a faculty committee including Miss Edith Brown, Miss Mabel Turney, Miss Fanny K. Hauhauser, Miss Hazel Markwith, D. N. Bohyer, E. H. Shado and K. H. Marshall, principal, and Jack Elliott, president of the junior class, which as seniors next year will present the course, Catherine Cheney, Mare Williams, Lowell Haldeman and Harold Lindsey.

Dates have not been arranged at this early date. This year the money is being spent for six numbers, instead of seven as in former years. Regardless of the fact that the senior entertainment course has always been of a high calibre, it is the ambition of each successive class to excel the preceding group. The class of 1930 feels that it has done that thing.

High Class Attractions

The class of 1930 will spend as much money for six numbers as has been previously spent for seven numbers. The Russian Cossacks alone is a number costing the students $500.

There is an interesting story in connection with the Cossacks. This chorus of 13 Russians has the aristocratic and imperial background of having been the court entertainers for the Czar of Russia. At the time of the revolution, when the ruler was killed, the men fled the country.

Under punishment of imprisonment or possibly death, they dare not go back. Since coming here they have not become citizens of the United States, and so cannot remain, except as a single chorus unit. In many ways they are "men without a country."

Noted Writer Booked

The name of Will Durant, brilliant author of "The Story of Philosophy," and "Transition," is enough to draw capacity audiences at any time. His average audience since he entered the lecture course field, has been around 1,500. For his talk here, he will choose one of the subjects including "The Greatest Thinkers," "Is Progress Real?", "The Emancipation of Woman," "Is Democracy a Failure?", "The Problems of Philosophy," and "My Littopia."

Maurice Hindus will be remembered by last year's patrons as the interesting speaker on foreign countries. On his return engagement he will speak on "Asia Aflame."

Dramatic Number

"Big Pond" is a play of wide repute and one of the best on entertainment course circles. The Hayes Sisters is a team of two sisters who present an evening of musical drama.

The lightest number on the program will be the S. S. Henry Co. The company includes three people, who will present an hour and a half of entertainment in the form of art and illusion.

Three Musketeers of Air Give Up Effort To Break Mark Following Squabble

Dumas' Famous Story Fails To Hold Good in Modern Times as Pilots of Plane Get into Argument Over Minor Plane Trouble and Land

ROOSEVELT FIELD N Y May 24—When Alexander Dumas wrote his immortal story of the Three Musketeers he described for posterity a band of men whose friendship nothing could shatter who were in truth all for one and one for all

But apparently things are different in this day and age than in medieval times, for a modern prototype of this famous triumvirate has come to the parting of the ways after only a few days of existence

Martin Jensen Henry Clark and William Ulrich aviators all members of the Three Musketeers Inc's army of its title of holder of the world's refueling flight record They banded together called themselves the Three Musketeers picked a similar name on their Bellanca monoplane and had their pictures taken hands clasped together eyes upraised in silent appeal of D Artagnans stirring pledge

Then after one false attempt they started out Wednesday evening on the endurance flight Twenty three and one half hours later at 6 o'clock last night to be exact the propeller of the great monoplane ceased its revolving and the machine swooped down out of the skies

No trouble had been encountered with the plane—at least nothing of any stance But something had happened to the Three Musketeers themselves while their machine was circling hour after hour over Roosevelt field

Slowly they stepped from the plane —Miss Perthou and Arnuts of the air—each one glum moody and silent. There was no fervent handclasping and for a little while not even an explanation for the descent

Then one after another they told their stories. It seems the wind had ripped three small holes in the side of the fuselage Opinions differed among the three as to the gravity of the affair Conversation led to discussion and discussion to heated controversy

Clark after the landing said that he favored suspension of the flight as he was worried about the rips

Jensen contended they could have been repaired in flight by anyone having courage enough to leap out of the window

Ulbrich said little but tried to patch up the differences

Conferences over the affair lasted until late last night long after the damage had been repaired When they were all over Jensen said the flight would be attempted again today with the same plane and the same crew—but with certain reservations

Principal among them was Jensen's assertion that he would be the chief and that Clark would be along merely as one of my pilots

Ulbrich apparently will be official peacemaker

"NO HIT" Zuspan's fast ball provided no mysteries for the Erie Roundhouse sluggers when the C. D & M recreation nine was defeated 11 to 1 in the first major upset of the Industrial league

Zuspan who was awarded the honor last week of being the first Marion recreation ball pitcher to turn in a no hit game this season was quite liberal with his offerings He was pounded for 11 hits and the railroaders took advantage of errors to chalk up as many runs

Fairfield continued to surprise the league experts by beating Gruber and his Hocking Valley nine 6 to 3 Gamble allowed the railroaders three hits

Osgood stayed in the select list of teams by chalking up a 7 to 6 victory over Huber with Baumgardner doing the tossing

The Steam Shovel nine is not expected to finish much higher than last place this season Last night the diggers lost their second straight start losing beaten by the Erie Yardmen 9 to 6 Both teams got 10 hits

A's Have Chance To Eclipse Yanks' Winning Streak

EIGHTH VICTORY IS CHALKED UP WHEN NATS LOSE 2 GAMES

Koenig Wins Contest for Yankees, Cards Beat Chicago

THE Philadelphia Athletics, who have been on a win down their pennants with a machine like precision remained on the great team which Connie Mack tore apart 15 years ago and eclipse the recent eight game winning streak of the Yankees by beating Washington today Their double win over the Nats yesterday marked the As eighth consecutive victory and placed them three games in front of the St Louis Browns who split a double bill with Cleveland

The Mackmen came from behind to win both of their doubleheaders with the Senators yesterday overcoming an eight run lead in the opener The score in each game was 8 to 6 Bing Miller's homer won the first game Six of the Athletics eight straight wins were scored at Washington's expense

After apparently kicking away the game by making five errors the Yankees nosed out the Red Sox in the ninth 7 to 6 on Koenig's second timely hit of the game Babe Ruth pulled his hit and walk play for the eighth time this season and is now only one down to Brother Gehrig

All of the American league games were closely contested Cleveland trimmed St Louis in the twelfth 7 to 6 but lost the second 7 to 5 Morgan and Melillo continued their great batting each getting five hits

Leather lunged St Louis rooters to the accompaniment of a cowbell sonata enjoyed a perfect afternoon as the champion Cardinals sat down the pretenders from Chicago 6 to 3 with Clarence Mitchell holding Rogers Hornsby former Red Bird manager hitless Andy High led the assault on Pitchers Blake Bush and Nehf with a homer and two singles as the Cards regained first place in the National loop

With the ailing John McGraw back on the bench to master mind them the Giants robot came to life and swamped Boston 11 to 4 The New Yorkers clouted seven successive singles before a man was out in the eighth inning when they scored seven runs The Braves had no luck against no hit Hubbell

Pittsburgh's 6 to 4 win over the Reds marked the seventh straight victory for the undefeated Burleigh Grimes and the seventh consecutive defeat for Cincinnati A triple in the seventh by Little Poison Waner with two runners on the sacks broke up the party

TEAMS BATTLE FOR ALL POSITIONS IN ASSOCIATION RACE

One Percentage Point Separates Kansas City and Minneapolis

COLUMBUS May 24 — Though nothing except the expected happened in the American Association this yesterday games to be played this afternoon may change the standings so much that one won't be able to recognize the old ladder

For the benefit of the curious and Uncle Sam's clerks work the standings with the percentages will be set down today The lineup itself isn't so interesting for it is the same as yesterday but oh my! jump the percentage column and see how close some teams are to a catastrophe There will be several games this afternoon

The standings Kansas City 759 Minneapolis 758 St Paul 515 Indianapolis 452 Milwaukee 400 Toledo 387 Louisville 367 and Columbus 364

Figures don't lie And what's more the foregoing numerals tell an interesting story to the fans Kansas City is so close to not being first that the temperature in Missouri is lowered many degrees today by the apprehensive shivering of those home town rooters

St Paul still has a safe hold on third and after that the rungs in the ladder don't count for much except the last one which Columbus seemingly takes great pleasure in holding forfeiting it once in a great while however to Louisville or Toledo

HARDING SENDS 4 MEN TO OHIO MEET

HUMESTON, ZIMMER CRAWFORD, PERRY WILL TAKE PART

Interscholastic Program Opens at Columbus with Preliminaries Today

HARDING high school will be represented by four athletes in the interscholastic track and field meet to be held at Columbus today and Saturday.

The local stars are given but little chance to take any first places although they are expected to place. The best bets of the local team are Crawford in the half-mile and Perry in the broad jump. Humeston will take part in the pole vault while Zimmer will run in the half mile.

The meet will mark the close of the track season at Harding. The Marion team has been very successful this year although they have not been able to win all meets. The team participated in events at Mansfield and the annual Ohio track and field meet at Delaware.

High Marks Face Tracksters of State

COLUMBUS, May 24—When Ohio high school track and field stars meet here at the Ohio stadium for the annual championships today and Saturday, they will have some of the greatest scholastic marks in the country to shoot at. The Buckeye meet this year was one of the greatest prep track issue gatherings in the United States and results in many new meet records and in three national records.

In the interscholastic honor roll, the Ohio state meet is represented in every track event and in two field events as well, a record not approached by any other interscholastic track meet. In the 100-yard dash, Donald Bennett, of Toledo, is listed in a tie for third place with his record of 10 second flat made here, while his mark of 21.1 seconds in the 220 heads the list. The latter is .9-10 of a second faster than any other 220 run best season and established a new interscholastic record.

To Herbert Moxley, of Columbus Central went the honor of setting a new national record in the quarter-mile last season with a mark of 48.2 seconds. This was 2.5 seconds faster than any other high school quarter run. Rudy, of Canton, is at the top of the high school half-milers with his mark of 1:59.5, while Mayer, of Cleveland, also crashed into the honor roll in this event, being rated as sixth for his Class B record set here.

In the mile run, Womer, of Lakewood, is rated sixth in the United States with a mark of 4:37.8, while Dymond, of Seneca, gained seventh place for the Class B mile he ran in 4:38. Jack Keller, of Columbus East, was the class of the low hurdlers last year, establishing a mark of 24.8 seconds here and was fifth in the high with 15.6 seconds to his credit.

Columbus Central established the third interscholastic record in the one mile relay when its team ran in 3:26.7, while Lakewood was rated second and Berea, eighth in the national rating. The two field event places went to Ramsey, of Dayton Roosevelt, who took fourth place in the high jump in the national rating with his leap of 6 feet ⅛ inch made here. Hepford, of Cleveland, was the sixth best broad jumper, having made 22 feet for first place in the meet last year.

This year's program calls for preliminaries in various track events on Friday, May 24, starting at 3 p. m. finals in the Class B field events Saturday morning at 9:30, and all remaining finals in both Class A and B events, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Beeler Hurls Wooster to Sixth Straight Win

WOOSTER, May 24—By defeating Kent State Normal, a non-conference team, Wooster college successfully completed its sixth straight victory here yesterday, by a score of 6 to 1.

Myles Beeler pitched excellent ball allowing only three hits and striking out 12 men. In five games this year, Beeler has accomplished the feat of striking out 68 batters and allowing only 16 safe hits.

Tilden and Hunter Cop Open Singles Matches

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, Auteuil, May 24—"Big Bill" Tilden and Francis T. Hunter made auspicious starts in the first round of the men's singles of the French hard courts championship today, each scoring straight set victories.

Tilden defeated the German star, Wetzel, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1. Hunter eliminated the Italian Delbono 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

KEYSTONES BRINGING STRONG TEAM TO MARION ON SUNDAY

Will Face Eagles at Lincoln Park at 2:30 O'clock

WHEN the Columbus Keystones come to Marion Sunday afternoon to engage the Eagles in a scheduled game of baseball at Lincoln park, the Ohio colored aggregation is expected to bring a much stronger team than the one that faced the locals last season.

White, who did the mound duty last year with the Memphis Red Sox will oppose Longshore of Marion at the start of the fray. Womack will be at first and Farmer is another man who roams in the outer gardens. The balance of the team is made up of colored stars recruited from the dusky leagues.

The contest will start at 2:30 o'clock.

EVANSTON, Ill., May 24—Three hundred twenty-two athletes were on hand for the preliminaries this afternoon in 11 of the 16 events of the annual track and field championships of the Western conference. Finals will be staged tomorrow afternoon in Dyche stadium of Northwestern university.

English Lightweight New York Sensation

NEW YORK, May 24—Jackie (Kid) Berg, young English lightweight in two whirlwind fights here with Bruce Flowers has established himself as one of the best drawing cards of the year at Madison Square Garden. Berg outpointed the New Rochelle, N. Y. negro recently in a furious slugfest that was crammed with action, and last night he proved his victory was no fluke by duplicating the performance in an equally fast bout. The show closed the indoor season at the Garden.

In almost every round the pair stood toe to toe and slugged for a knockout. The long suffering public enjoyed a novel treat on several occasions when the referee was forced to pry the wilting battlers apart after the bell.

WANTS EVERY TOWN IN U. S. AIR MARKED

Guggenheim Fund Announces Plans for Development Campaign

NEW YORK, May 24—The Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics today announced plans for handling a campaign that should have far-reaching effects on the development of American aviation.

An effort will be made to have every city, town and hamlet in all parts of the United States "air-marked" so that both commercial and military flyers can be sure of their whereabouts at all times, when in flight.

The importance of this campaign can be readily seen, with the names of the communities over which they are flying visible to aviators the possibilities of serious accidents will be greatly lessened and air travel in general made much more dependable.

Letters are being mailed by officials of the fund today to the governors of the 48 states asking the cooperation of the executives in the campaign.

That the governors will be only too glad to do all they can to help the drive is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

In making the announcement, officials of the fund declared that a large percentage of the country's centers of population are already marked with roof signs which can be seen from great heights.

PURE OIL CO. TO BUILD LUBRIDOME

Work on Improvement Now Under Way at Station on North State St

Work preliminary to installation of a lubridome the first to be operated in Marion was started yesterday at the Pure Oil Co filling station on North State st located immediately north of The Marion Star building

A brick and concrete building extending 55 feet across almost the entire width of the lot is to be constructed for the lubridome in which complete lubricating service will be provided for automobiles The design of the lubridome will be similar to those already operating in the larger cities The one on North State st will be large enough to the service of three cars at once The lubricating equipment will be electrically operated and the building will be steam heated to assure efficient service in the cold weather season

Ernest C Earl district manager of the Pure Oil Co says that additional lubridomes will probably be installed at other stations of the company here and throughout the district which comprises eight counties

A building permit issued at the city clerks office yesterday for the new structure estimates the cost at $1 000

The present filling station building will be removed and the lubridome erected at the rear of the gasoline pumps The filling station service will be maintained as in the past

Work is in charge of J F Dressler Columbus Pure Oil Co construction superintendent Completion of the lubridome is expected in about eight weeks

Parking space for customers cars will be provided at the rear of the building as in the past

This improvement is a part of a general program of construction work and expansion being carried on here by the Pure Oil Co Work on construction of a seven-car brick and concrete garage and remodelling of the company s warehouse at the bulk station and general offices west of the city is nearing completion

Reserve Board Refuses To Grant Increase for Banks

STOCKS SLIGHTLY HIGHER

Good Recoveries in Motors Various Shares Above Friday's Close

By WILLIAM COUSINS
(NEA Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, May 24—Wall Street was quite satisfied with the action of the reserve board in announcing a policy for the New York banks. Though the board's statement did not specifically refer to the situation which would have arisen had the banks which would have had to borrow from the Federal Reserve banks, the implication was that there are plenty of funds in the market to take care of the needs of the moment.

Prices in the stock market reached new points last week. General Motors and a few others reached new high levels for the year or so and, according to rumors in the financial district, manufacturers are mainly in disposing of their stock.

Interest at the moment, however, is centering on the long picture of present conditions in the light of reasonable business profits for the steel industry. Bears still hold out for a collapse in stocks, while others think that the present level will be maintained for some time to come.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Cucumber three long green garden pickles that one can easily eat too many of when they are properly prepared now range on Marion markets from 8 cents to 15 cents. There are two varieties offered.

The large plump cucumbers that sell for 15 cents straight formerly standing at 10 and 20 cents come from Louisville, Ky. which has a daily output of about two cars of cucumbers of the hothouse variety.

The cheaper and smaller grade ones from Wrunt & Son at Newark O. where most of the Inter cucumbers will be grown.

The rich sandy soil around Cleveland will begin producing cucumbers within two weeks, local grocers think. Locally grown cucumbers will not be here until around August.

There were no marked changes in market prices today with all green fresh items showing around last level. Grapefruit was still two cents higher on all sizes. No meat price changes were reported.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, May 24—Grain prices held to a narrow range in a quiet trade on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Wheat averaged lower with weak foreign markets and lack of export demand. Corn was slightly firmed on the forecast for unfavorable weather and the good cash demand.

Closing prices were irregular and little changed from the previous day. Wheat finished ¼c lower to ⅛c higher, corn ⅛@¾c higher, oats ⅛@⅜c up and rye ¼ higher to ¼ lower. Winnipeg wheat prices closed unchanged to ½c lower and Liverpool finished unchanged to ½d higher considered as weaker than due.

The wheat market yesterday demonstrated that while it is becoming more susceptible to crop factors the enormous world carryover is still the dominating influence. Crop conditions in Canada were just as bullish as the previous day when they led to short covering, which rallied prices 2 cents and they were supported by comparative firmness in the Winnipeg market.

However the weakness of Liverpool which was prevented from following our advance of the day before because of pressure from rival offerings of Canadian and Argentine wheats caused local prices to average lower and brought out offerings on all upturns.

Seaboard advices indicated a very quiet demand and credited the Canadian pool with having made heavy sales the past week at concessionary prices which accounted for the slow demand. Broomhall in calling attention to this added that it was believed the Canadian pool had been supporting the Winnipeg futures market during the period the sales were being made at discount. This undoubtedly accounts for the declines at Buenos Aires and Liverpool apparently ignored in the Winnipeg market action.

Meanwhile crop reports from the domestic winter and spring wheat belts were generally favorable although warmer weather is desired in all sections. The repeated reports of dryness most of which emanate from Winnipeg are partially offset by crop reports which state that the main thing lacking in the Canadian northwest is warmer weather.

Corn was easier in price in the early trade with the weakness in wheat but later went higher and ruled fairly firm on buying by commission houses and cash interests. While weather conditions were more favorable over the belt the forecast was for rain, which increased the interest in the reports of delayed planting.

Shipping demand was fair, and country offerings continued moderate, but it was noticeable that primary receipts were considerably larger than a week ago and daily receipts in the local market have been mounting steadily.

In the cash market, wheat was nominally unchanged to 1c lower; corn, steady to 1c higher; oats steady; rye dull, and barley steady.
